35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 50-59, 80-83, 86-103 and 114-123 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is non-statutory.

Each of claims 50, 51, 52, 53, 80, 88, 96 and 114 include a statement that “non-discrimination requirements are met” by certain actions, such as matching eligibility. Claiming a method step of complying with a law when compliance with the law is not determined by the invention, but rather by an external agency, appears to render the claims non-statutory, since it is presuming a result that the invention does not actually control. Determining compliance with a law is made by an external agency, such as the Internal Revenue Service, and is not made by the invention. While a claim could accurately state that an invention is subject to laws, it does not appear proper to claim that the invention fully complies with the law, since the invention itself does not make that final determination.

The language in question may be deleted, or alternatively worded utilizing the language if claim 74.

Claims 54-59, 81-83, 89-95, 97-103 and 115-123 are dependent upon the recited claims above.

Claims 46-49, 63-79, 84-87, 104-113 and 124-137 are allowed.

This action is made non-final.
